RECRUITMENT OF BUSINESSMEN FOR LIMITED PERIODS OF GOVERNMENT SERVICE

Because of the interrelations of industry and government there is an ever increasing need for cooperation between the two, and a mutual understanding of the problems which exist in both. In transacting its business it is sometimes desirable in the public interest for the Government to call upon private industry for capable businessmen willing to take on important Government assignments, for limited periods of time.

"Certain legal and ethical questions arise in connection with the appointment of such individuals...."

"In many cases where a Government official or employee continues to receive compensation from outside sources, a conflict of interest is inherent..."
